

Then, one day, in a far away place called Houston, Texas, a greedy man named Charles Hurwitz and his MAXXAM Company made a plan to take over Pacific Lumber. He even bought a bank and took the money from it so he could buy Pacific Lumber. From then on people called him Greedy Charles.